

7 Best Apps for Model Releases and Property Releases

Amos Struck

What is a Release?

All photographers who shoot models or private property for the purposes of subsequent sale of these images need special documents to protect themselves from possible troubles. Such documents are called Photo Releases or simply Releases.

Release is an agreement between the photographer and the person (model) who is photographed (or the owner of the property you are photographing) signed with the participation of a witness. This document guarantees your right to publish and sell your photos avoiding risks and possible claims of the model or owner of the property.

There are two key types of Releases:

1. Model Release supports the permission of the person (model) to be photographed by you and allows you to use the photo images (including sale purposes). There are two major subcategories of Model Releases usually used: Adult Release (for adults) and Minor Release (for minors).
2. Property Release confirms that the owner of a private property (buildings, mechanisms, wares, art works, pets, etc.) allows you to take a photo of this property and use finale image.

Who creates, develops and regulates these documents? Of course, you may invent your own forms of the Releases, but it doesn't make much sense to spend your time and efforts working on something that already exists. Various organizations such as the American Society of Media Photographers' (ASMP) and Getty Images has already proposed their variants of the Releases. Many photographers find these documents to be appropriate and sufficient, and already using them.
